Paperwork

Bryan sighed, standing in the doorway of Kai's office. Watching as the Phoenix signed another document in the massive stack before moving on to the next. Both Tala and himself had commented on the fact that Kai spent far too much time working. So much so to a point that both of his lovers had begun to worry about his health.

"You missed dinner." Bryan said quietly.

Kai paused at the sound of his lovers husky voice, peering over the massive stack of papers to see his Falcon's smirking face. And he smiled, resuming his work.

"I have to get this done." The Bluenette said simply and Bryan rolled his eyes, making his way over to the desk.

"I see that. But dont you think its time for a break. Youve been in here all afternoon, and I'm sure you'd like something to eat." Bryan tried again, rounding the desk and placeing his hands on the Phoenix's shoulders, feeling the tensness.

"Im fine, I -"

Kai was cut off as Bryan began to kiss his neck, kneading his shoulders gently, working out he soreness and making him groan. Spinning the swivel chair around he pulled Bryan into his lap, Kissing his feircly. Bryan moaning as Kai forced his tounge into his mouth, making him hot with want.

Breaking the kiss, Kai began to kiss down his Falcon neck, finding a suitable place before biting down, making Bryan let out a startled yelp. A smirk grew on his lips as he licked away the tiny drops of blood, before looking up at the glaring face of his lover. But soon that glare turned to a lusty smirk, and the Falcon pried himself from the Pheonix's grip, who growled.

"Get back here!" Kai said firmly, and Bryan only made his way back to the door.

"Silly Kai. This is my favorite shirt. And now i'm all dirty." Bryan mock pouted, gesturing to the red stain now on his yellow shirt. "Im going to take a shower, see if Tala may want to join me. Have fun with your paperwork, let me know if you want that bite to eat." With that, Bryan smirked, winked, and exited the office.

Kai set back in his chair. Contemplating his options. Sexy shower time with his lovers, or Boring paperwork. Hmmmmm. . . Hopping up from his chair, Kai rounded the massive desk and made his way from the room as quickly as possible. Yup, the paperwork could soooo wait.

Ñ•Ð½ÐµÐ³

Tala whistled merrily as he made his way down the snow covered street, and to the animal shelter. After much discussion with Kai, they'd decided that if they were going to work so much that Bryan needed company while they were away. Especially for longer buisness trips. So a pet was the best option.

Stopping at the sign that read, "Tog's Animal Shelter" Tala smiled and walked into the large building. Wasting little time in making his way around the masses of kennels. Taking in the animals. No cats, he had to walk straight past those, Bryan hated cats for obvious reasons. So the Wolf made his way over to the dogs.

Each was different. Pit Bulls, German Shepards, Labs. But none seemed suited for his Lover. Sighing, he made his way around. To fat. To druely. To Ugly. Another sigh, and then a ball of white fluff.

Tala blinked, staring into the cage. There sat a small puffy white little mutt. No bigger than his ankle. Staring at him with big blue eyes and a wagging tail. Smiling Tala popped the cage open and scooped up the small dog who yapped happily. Making his way to the reception, he signed the necesarry paperwork and made his way from the place, holding the puppy securly in his jacket, sheiled from the wind.

He had nearly made it home, when the small dog began to growl lowly at the alley beside his apartment building. Making his way over, he peered around the wall, eyes narrowing dangerously.

"Awwe. Whats the matter. Dont like the truth Falcon. Everone knows your just a heartless bastard anyway." The older man sneered at Bryan, and Tala felt his anger flare as a look of hurt crossed through his lovers midnight eyes.

"I dont want to have to prove that statement true. Now move out of my way." Bryan snarled.

"What'cha gonna do." The man mocked.

Tala was about to interfere as the bigger man stepped up to Bryan, but the small pup in his hands struggled free, hopping to the ground and barking viciously at the man. Jumping up to bite him square on the ass.

"AHHH! MY ASS LET GO MUTT!" The man yelped, spinning in circles. Tala watched as his lover chuckled furiously, and he couldnt help but join in, but quietly as not to be seen. Shaking the dog free, the small pup his the ground with a whimper and Tala once again felt his temper heat up. But it seems his lover had the same temper, for he'd already punched the man. Who his the ground unconcious like a ton of Bricks.

Tala watched as his silver haired lover made his way over to the small pup, removing his jacket and scooping the small dog into his arms, who licked his face happily. And Tala couldnt help but smile, at the soft smile that curved at Bryans lips.

"Well. Arent you a little tiger." Bryan chuckled patting the pups head. "I think i'll keep you. It gets kind of lonley when Kai and Tala are away and I could use some company. I think I'll call you Ñ•Ð½ÐµÐ³, for snow. What do you think?"

The pup yapped happily and Bryan smiled. Tala himself made a B line for the apartment. Not wanting to reveal himself or the fact that it had been he who'd got the dog. No, he would give Bryan that.

Later that night Tala and Kai walked into the sitting room, finding their lover and his small white pup asleep on the massive sofa by the fire. Smiling softly the Phoenix flipped off the light, while Tala covered the two with a blanket.

"I told you a pet was a good Idea." Kai smirked, tone cocky.

"You did not." Tala snorted, kissing Kai's cheek, before making his way from the room. Kai following and muttering obcenities behind him.

Mornings

Tala made his way down the stairs, the smell of bacon and eggs assaulting his senses and making his stomach growl. He entered the large kitchen smiling at the sight that greeted him. Kai in his leather black apron cooking breakfast. A hyper puppy yapping around his feet. While Bryan sat in a chair, head propped up on his elbow on the table, cofee perched in the other hand, eyes closed.

Smiling wider he made his way in, kissing Kai on the cheek and Bryan on the forehead before making his cofee and plopping down in a chair himself. Content with the sweet silence and sounds of crackling bacon.

Kai made plates and set them down on the table, sitting down himself between his two lovers. Just enjoying their presence.

"What time do you two have to be at work?" Bryan mumbled, sipping his cofee still partially asleep.

"Nine. We'll have to be off in a few minutes." Kai said quietly, sipping his cofee as well.

"I need a job."

At this line, Kai and Tala both rolled their eyes, it was the same thing everymorning before they went to work.

"Bryan we've been over this a thousand times. You dont have to work, Kai and myself do. And we quite enjoy it. You however dont enjoy interacting with people, so staying home with Ñ•Ð½ÐµÐ³ works out to your advantage." Tala smirked a Bryans small nod and grumble.

"Still, its sooo boring here. I need a hobby or somthing." The falcon continued.

"Hn. You dont have to sit around here all day, go out and do somthing. Tala and I have to go." Kai smiled standing and kissing his Falcon squarley on the lips. Tala doing the same.

"Bye love." Tala said sweetly.

Bryan didnt respond but smiled anyway.

Tala and Kai made their way to the sleek black Porche parked out front, stopping just before climbing in Tala said, "You think he'll be alright. He was a little more down this morning than usual." Tala commented and Kai smirked, pointing to the Kitchen window above them, Prompting Tala to look up.

Bryan stood in the window, smiling, a wriggling ball of white fur under his arm. The Falcon waved, and The Wolf and Phoenix waved in return. Climbing into the car as the their lover disappeared from view.
